

Reception News

11th May 2018

This week

In maths this week there was great excitement when I produced a tray of cookies as props for a story called "The Doorbell Rang" by Pat Hutchins, designed to explore "fair share". Megan and Frankie thought their luck was in when they shared the cookies out and got 6 each. However, their faces dropped when they were told to share them with more and more children as in the story!!! There is a surprise ending.... I wonder if the children can tell you what happened? The children also rose to the challenge to make their own repeating patterns with objects found in the classroom such as shells, stones, lolly-sticks, whiteboard pens and rubbers! In forest schools the children showed us their knowledge of position by, for example, following instructions to stand behind, in front and next to their partners.

Next week

Next week we will be thinking about the Royal Family culminating in our own staged Royal Wedding on Friday. More details to follow!

In phonics practice spelling words ending with "ing" and "ed".
